NOTE:

- The build-out analysis is a method of determining the maximum potential population for the future under current codes and regulations of each political jurisdiction considering environmental conditions. After the maximum population is calculated, the political jurisdiction can plan long-range goals and policies to protect natural resources and provide services and facilities.
- The Build-out population is based on the Township (or municipality) Comprehensive plan and uses the highest density scenario from the plan.
- These numbers do not consider potential areas of annexation.
